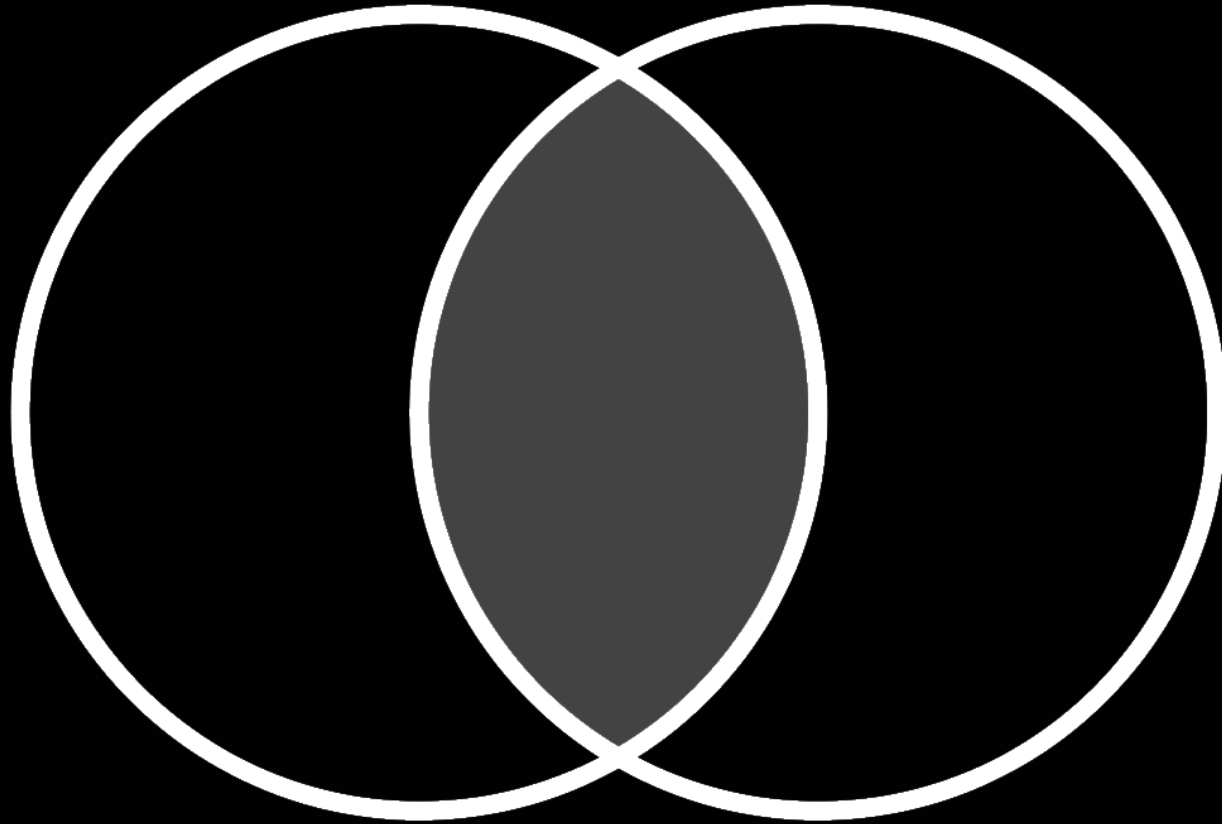

Figure 6 “(W)e will dare to speak against internal exclusions and marginalizations, that we might call attention to how the identity of ‘the group’ has been centered on the intersectional identities of a few.” Kimberlé Williams Crenshaw (1994)

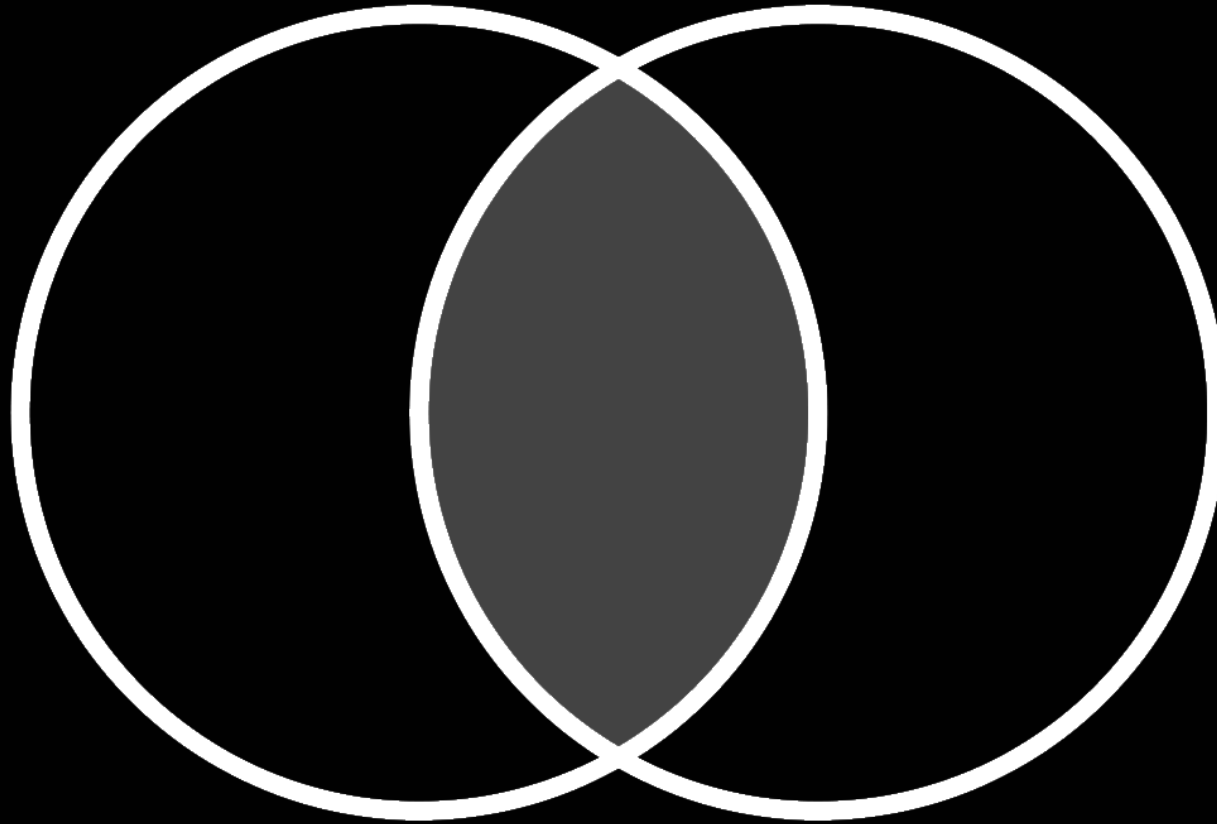

Figure 6 “This problem with forms of equality that only balance out within a binary is an issue that we need black feminist calculus to address:”

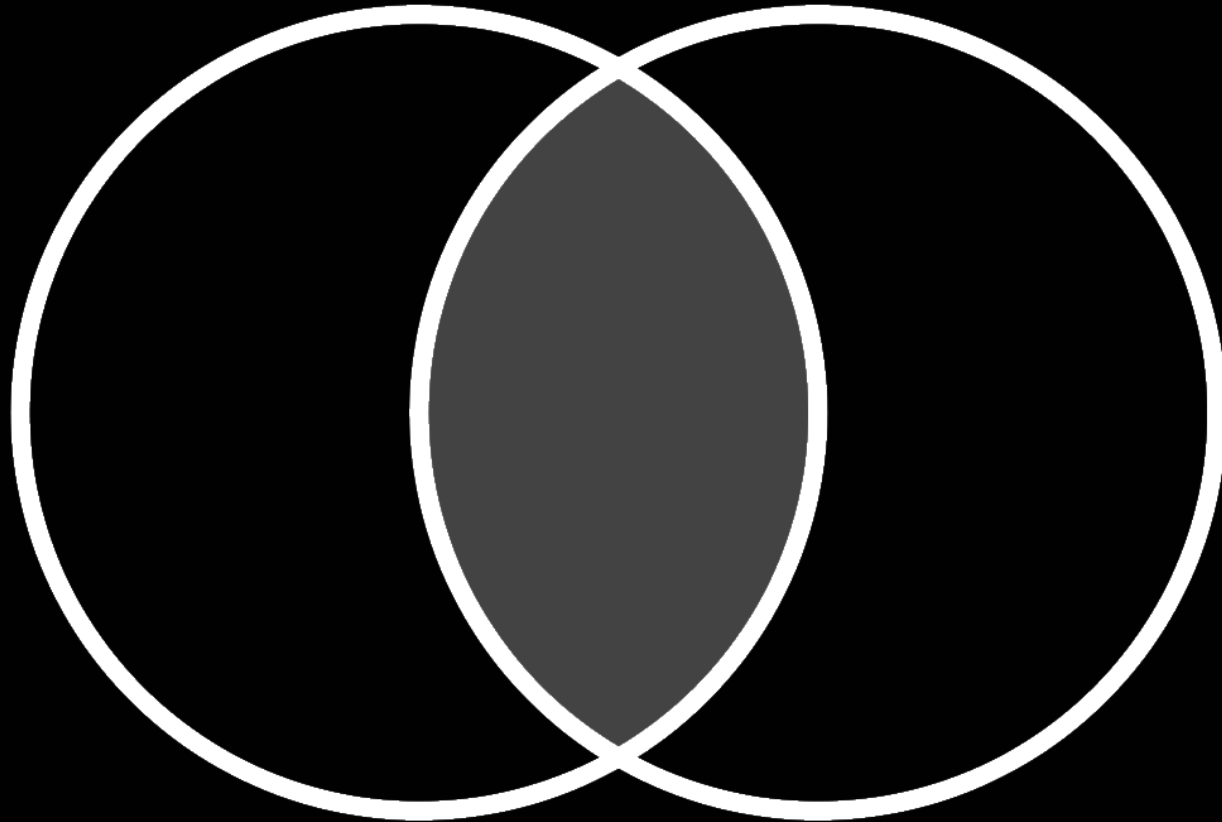

Figure 6 $(x + 1)^2 = 2x^2 + x + 1$ (the equality is only true if x equals either zero or one.) Alexis Pauline Gumbs, Julia Roxanne Wallace, Black Feminist Calculus Meets Nothing to Prove (2016)
